Dear Ms. Dixon:

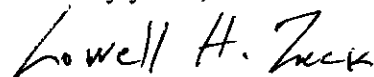

A neighbor of mine has called my attention to the imminent DOE plan to ship 80,000 tons of radioactive waste across St. Louis County for 30 years.

1 My home is in suburban St. Louis, Webster Groves, fifty feet from the main line of the Union Pacific railroad west. The Union Pacific line, through which all of those shipments would go, travels right through the middle of St. Louis County (not part of the City of St. Louis), a county in which one million people live.

I ask the DOE, does it make sense to put such a large number of people and home owners to risk from such a possibly dangerous, massive, long-lasting movement of lethal materials?

Why not wipe out Las Vegas first?

Sincerely yours,
